Guardians of the nation's health and well-being

The history of Public Health Medicine Colleges in New Zealand, 1977-2018

The College of Public health Medicine has existed in its current form for the past ten years. But the roots of the College stretch back to the formation of the New Zealand College of Community Medicine in the 1970s.

This publication documents the history of the College in its different guises over the past 40 years. With the ten-year celebration of the current College, this seemed an appropriate time to document this history.
